To Whom it May Concern:

I had the pleasure to work with Mallorie Ng during her internship at Digital Arts Network, part of TBWA (Omnicom Group). Mallorie was part of our team for 6 months and helped the Account Servicing team in their tasks. She reported directly to 2 persons who used to coach her and give her directions. I was the head of the business for that particular account that had a team of 15 persons across departments (Accounts, Strategy, Creative, Project Management).

During her internship, Mallorie delivered on all the tasks she was asked to perform. She delivered those tasks with enthusiasm and drive with the will to learn that was very much appreciated by the entire team. She showed great skills in managing the day to day operations and helped the team to manage the finance part of the operations, with getting POs, Cost Estimate. She was also instrumental in booking time and coordinating people in our meetings, including the ones we have with our regional team. Her commitment and attitude is something that I want to call out. As part of our internship program, Mallorie was also tasked to do a proposal targeting the millennials for one of our brands. Along with her colleagues she showed strong potential to understand a business, strategically take the brief and lead the team to come up with their ideas and present it.

We are sad to see Mallorie go and I strongly recommend anyone who is going to come across her profile to hire her, give her time to learn and let her shine. She won't disappoint you. If we could have keep Mallorie to our team we would have but she decided to continue to study and if she wants to come back at the end of those, our team will welcome her with open arms.

Best Regards.
